LOOKING FORWARD

Thank you everyone for your participation in our congregational meeting last Sunday. We're happy that the new bylaws have passed so that we can continue building towards the future as a church. Because our previous constitution vote was dependent on the bylaws passing, this means that the constitution has also now passed. The new constitution will now be submitted to the CRA.

The new structure of the church that these bylaws describe will come into place effectively in January of 2023. We will have a budget meeting with elections on November 20, which will be the official start date of the new bylaws coming into effect, which will change how our church council and committees are structured. But we have no meetings scheduled for December, so this will effectively come into place in January.

The budget that is currently being prepared will remain the same, but will need to be reorganized into the new structure.
